

USB Cable Market Trends, Global Report, Industry Research Analysis, Forecast Period by 2032: SPER Market Research

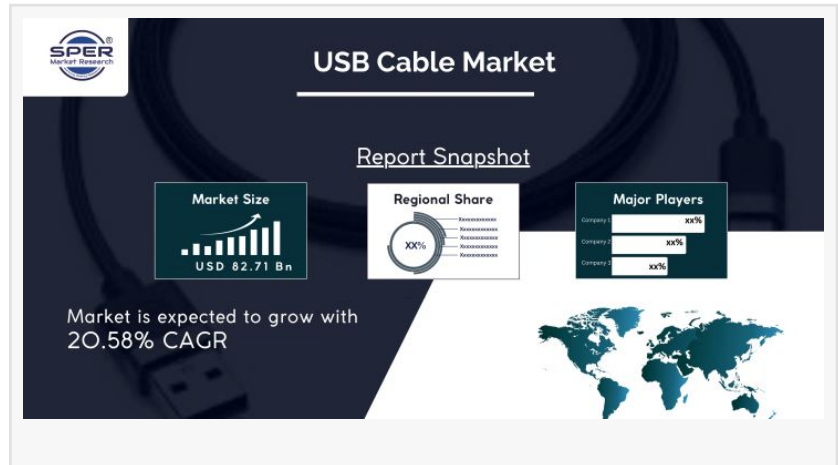

Global USB Cable Market is estimated to reach USD 82.71 billion by 2032 with a CAGR of 20.58%: SPER Market Research

NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, December 6, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --

According to SPER Market Research, Important factors impacting the development of the market include the rise in consumer electronics demand, the growing penetration of video in demand, video conferencing, gaming, and home security systems, as well as the evolution of data centers. The security issues USB poses, however, impede industrial development.

On the other hand, during the course of the projection period, the predicted expansion of the automotive industry and the launch of USB type C will offer attractive chances for USB cables. The evolution of USB technology and the introduction of USB 4 are additional factors boosting the demand for USB cables. The creation of USB cables has a significant business possibility in this area. Additionally, the introduction of USB type C helps the market.

Forecast CAGR (2022–2032): 20.58%

Forecast Market Size (2032): 82.71 billion

Impact of COVID-19 on the Global Feeding Systems Market:

The COVID-19 epidemic had a detrimental effect on the expansion of the global USB cable industry as lockdowns were implemented in a number of different countries throughout the world. A number of industrial facilities were forced to close as a consequence of the lockdown, especially those that produced technology products and USB cables, resulting in a detrimental effect on market demand and expansion. Regulations imposed by governments from many nations throughout the world have also reduced the workforce. These prohibitions were put in place by the government to impede the virus's spread during the outbreak. The market was negatively impacted by a paucity of raw materials as a result of restrictions on the import and export of different items.
