Building community capital via regulated investment crowdfunding is a focus of the conference again this year. SuperCrowd22, held in September 2022, was praised for its scale and impact.

SuperCrowd23 plays two vital roles. First, it assembles, grows and trains the community of investors. Second, it strengthens entrepreneurs working to build better communities or solve global problems.”

“I’m excited by this whole conference—the biggest group of visionary experts I’ve ever seen assembled,” said Scott McIntyre, Chairman of the Crowdfunding Professional Association of the recent event.

“My problem was I wanted to be in every session. It was valuable, insightful; it was networking amongst like-minded folks—interesting and inspirational,” said Jackie Logan, Chief Investment Officer of the climate-focused regulated investment crowdfunding portal Raise Green, of SuperCrowd22. “I have not been to a conference like this. This is real. This is actionable.”

“SuperCrowd23 plays two vital roles in the crowdfunding economy in 2023,” said Michelle Thimesch, CEO of Crowdfund Main Street. “First, it assembles, grows and trains the community of investors focused on impact through crowdfunding. Second, it strengthens, enables and inspires entrepreneurs working to build better communities or solve global problems.”

Upon registering for SuperCrowd23, ticketholders will receive immediate access to the video archive for SuperCrowd22, which features almost 50 hours of recorded expert content.

The event is a collaborative effort among industry leaders coming together to hold the event.
