SCHC has had a robust in-house scribe program for over a decade, with its training efforts being recognized and published by the California Healthcare Foundation in 2012. The strategy behind partnering with Scribe-X is to expand and fortify its current program with a highly-trained, predictable, and reliable cohort of scribe support for its medical providers.

“Like many healthcare organizations, workforce shortages and recruitment have been very difficult in recent memory,” said Charles Kitzman, CIO at Shasta Community Health Center. “We look forward to discovering what possibilities remote scribing can offer our medical providers and how Scribe-X can become a workforce resource to help our providers when we have these workforce shortages.”

“We are excited to be working with such a high-quality organization. SCHC has proven that medical scribes can be a powerful support tool to relieve the burden of clerical work providers' experience associated with documentation. We are eager to help them to continue to deliver an exceptional and consistent provider experience,” said Warren Johnson, Co-Founder, and CEO of Scribe-X. “By relieving this burden, providers can see patients in a timely manner and help ensure the important social determinants of health are addressed during the visit.”

Shasta Community Health Center is a non-profit primary health care system. SCHC is based in Redding, California, and has served Shasta and surrounding counties and communities since 1988. Shasta Community Health Center's mission is to provide quality healthcare services to the medically underserved populations of our communities.
