Abundance Asset Management Launches 506C Fund With a Mission to Safely Outperform the Market

Abundance Asset Management has unveiled the Abundance Asset Management Fund, a 506C fund that applies the Abundance Strategy.

LEWES, DELAWARE, UNITED STATES, December 8, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Abundance Asset Management, domiciled in Lewes, Delaware is a financial services company dedicated to helping accredited investors maximize their returns through diversified, low risk investments, has launched the Abundance Asset Management Fund, a 506C fund that uses the Abundance Strategy.

The Abundance Strategy is a carefully-crafted options selling strategy that generates passive cash flow while hedging against market risk with a mission to outperform the stock market. With a simple strategy that uses the market’s volatility to generate alpha, Abundance Asset Management maintains a 50%/50% cash-to-equity position on a single diverse stock, the Invesco QQQ. This strategy does not require the stock to rise in price in order to generate cash flow, and is able to generate a positive return in a multitude of market conditions.
We couple this with our tax planning strategy available through a partnership with Sabur Private Wealth Management to maximize investor returns.

> Our strategy is designed to generate consistent cash flow while preserving capital and minimizing risk, a great fit for accredited investors looking for a low-risk, high-yield investment option.”
>
> Chris Perkins, CEO

Abundance Asset Management is an ESG-compliant actively managed fund. The fund is available to accredited investors only, with a minimum investment of $50,000.

“We are very excited to launch the Abundance Asset Management Fund,” says Chris Perkins, CEO of Abundance Asset Management. “Our strategy is designed to generate consistent cash flow while preserving capital and minimizing risk. This fund will be a great fit for accredited investors who are looking for a low-risk, high-yield investment option.”
