California's highly trusted house buyers, is happy to announce that it is expanding its services in Lodi, Manteca, Tracy, and neighboring cities.

This service expansion is done to meet the increasing demand for house-buying services and the need for a better alternative solution in selling houses in Stockton.

“

Our house-buying solution is straightforward because we use our own cash and close quickly according to your preferred schedule. We make the whole house-buying process simple, transparent, and fast.”

Bruce Arellano

Many homeowners in Stockton and surrounding cities are now looking for a faster and more straightforward solution to get rid of their unwanted properties.

According to Bruce Arellano, spokesperson of Forge Property Solutions, their company needs to expand its services to help more people get out of their sticky situations.

“We aim to help as many homeowners get fair cash offers for their unwanted houses,” Arellano shared.

“This service expansion is a major milestone for Forge Property Solutions. We want to reassure our clients that we have the workforce and capability to extend help even to Stockton's neighboring cities.”

When asked why homeowners sell their houses, Arellano said there are three main reasons.

“Most of our past clients wanted to sell their houses quickly and get cash offers right away because they want to move or relocate to another city,” Arellano explained. “They relocate mostly for career opportunities, and that’s why they need to get rid of their property as fast as possible.”

The second reason, according to Arellano, has to do with upsizing or downsizing. “Some families feel that their houses are too small for them; that’s why they need to upsize or move to a larger one,” shared Arellano. “On the other hand, some families feel owning a large house is very expensive, and they need to downsize or move to a smaller house.”

The third reason is wanting to live near loved ones or amenities. “There are homeowners who find it lonely to live far away from their loved ones and those who also feel very inconvenient because they live far away from amenities,” Arellano explained.

According to Arellano, no matter the reason behind the sale, Forge Property Solutions is always willing to help and can provide house sellers with fair cash offers within 24 hours.
