Key Trends In The Interventional Neurology Devices And Equipment Market

Stryker Inc.'s latest technological development Neuroform Atlas Stent System is expected to provide significant results to treat brain aneurysms with embolic coils. The introduction of such technologies would drive the interventional neurological device market in the future. The Atlas stent system provides great support during the coiling procedures, and it has been designed to provide the coil support and wall apposition needed to perform an effective stent-assisted coiling procedure. Neuroform Atlas has enhanced stent conformability, a low-profile delivery system, and high deployment accuracy even in distal anatomy making it the latest choice of the neurosurgeons, thereby steering the market.
