TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA,
December 19, 2022 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- This is typically the time of the year when dental offices in Canada, as well as the United States, search frantically for dental assistants and hygienists.

That's because patients become aware that their benefits associated with insurance plans, or opportunities to incur expenses for their 2022 taxes, are about to expire.

"As a practicing dentist, I know that my own staff frequently asks for time off over the holidays," said Dr. James Younger, founder and CEO of TempStars. "Meanwhile, the number of patients calling in for last minute appointments is increasing."

"As a practicing dentist, I know that my own staff frequently asks for time off over the holidays," said Dr. James Younger, founder and CEO of TempStars. "Meanwhile, the number of patients calling in for last minute appointments is increasing."

TempStars, as North America's largest and most respected dental temping and hiring service, provides dental assistants and hygienists with a way to meet the needs of dentists, while picking up additional shifts and revenues over the holidays.

"This is a great time of the year for dental assistants and hygienists that are part of the TempStars program to make themselves available," said Dr. Younger. "If they haven't joined TempStars, there is no better time than now to join. Click on this link to learn more."
