Fish Collagen Peptides Market Dynamics

Drivers

Rise in joint disorders

In the forecast period of 2022–2029, factors such as an increasing geriatric population worldwide, an increase in joint disorders, rising consumer awareness of personal wellness and nutraceuticals, rising investment levels in the development of collagen-based products, and expanding research into wound healing and regeneration are likely to boost the growth of the fish collagen peptides market.

Rising demand of marine collagen

On the other hand, increasing demand for marine collagen in the cosmetics industry and the commercialization of innovative collagen-based drug delivery systems would both increase potential for the market for fish collagen peptides during the time covered by the forecast.

Opportunities

Furthermore, increasing demand for anti-aging products owing to rising spending of women in cosmetics is expected to propel the industry landscape.
