Analysis of the impact of the Russia-Ukraine War and COVID-19

The start of the Russia-Ukraine War and the ensuing COVID-19 pandemic has had a significant impact on the market for sports flooring. Millions of people have been displaced by the war, many of whom have fled to nearby nations like Ukraine. Because many individuals want to set up temporary gyms and sporting venues in their homes, the demand for sports flooring in Ukraine has significantly increased. Sports flooring demand has decreased as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic worldwide forced shutdown of gyms and other athletic facilities. However, it is anticipated that after the pandemic is gone and people resume their regular workout routines, demand for sports flooring will increase.

Key Drivers & barriers in the Sports Flooring Market

In the upcoming years, the market for sports flooring is anticipated to expand dramatically. The rising popularity of sports and the rising consumer concern for their health are major factors in this expansion. However, a number of obstacles can prevent this sector from expanding. First off, compared to other types of flooring, sports flooring is very expensive. Second, installation can be difficult and labor-intensive. Finally, the lack of industry standards makes it challenging for customers to compare products and make wise judgments.

Key Benefits for Industry Participants & Stakeholders:

The following are some of the main advantages of laser cutting for stakeholders and industry participants:

- Increasing demand for sports flooring: Sports are becoming more and more popular, and there is a growing demand for durable flooring, which is fueling this rise.
- Cost savings: Sports flooring often lasts longer and needs less sports replacement than other types of flooring since it is more resilient. Over time, this may result in significant cost reductions for stakeholders and members of the industry.
- Improved safety: Because sports flooring is made to absorb impact and lessen slips and falls, it is one of the major advantages.
