Trending Religious Organizations Market Trend

The use of technology is increasingly being used by religious organizations to leverage religious organization assets for social impact. For instance, Goodlands is a start-up that is using geo-data to map the lands of the catholic church globally. It uses the geographic information system (GIS) software to make a map of the roman catholic church across the world with boundaries and layer on layer of data about the church and environmental contexts, then uses the land assets for creating new ways to channel them for social good.
