“We invited Dahlia to SideBar” said co-host Mitch Winick, “because she writes and speaks about unheralded women lawyers who were warriors and gladiators in the fight for equality and justice. Their stories provide role models for our law students, current, and future lawyers who understand that many of these critical battles are still underway.”

Lithwick has held visiting faculty positions at the University of Georgia Law School, the University of Virginia School of Law, and the Hebrew University Law School in Jerusalem. Lithwick earned her B.A. in English from Yale University and her J.D. degree from Stanford University.

In discussing the importance of discussing these types of issues on SideBar, Winick, President and Dean of Monterey College of Law, emphasized that “Jackie and I believe that legal education should extend beyond the law school classroom and be part of our public dialogue.” Gardina, Dean of the Colleges of Law in Santa Barbara and Ventura adds, “Constitutional rights do not exist in a historical vacuum. If we want to understand the context of current legal decisions, it is important to discuss why these laws originally came about, how they have evolved over time, and how they will be applied in the future.”

These issues are bigger than just the written opinions of the Supreme Court. It is important that each of us realize that by committing to issues for the long term, we can be the agents of change.”
