LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, January 12, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Sylvie Beljanski, top health advocate and award-winning author, will be featured at Dr. Michael Karlfeldt's Regenerative Medicine Summit on January 15th. Beljanski states "The good news is that we now know that natural molecules able to selectively kill many kinds of cancer cells (including cancer stem cells), do exist. They are non-toxic to healthy cells and work in synergy with most chemotherapies. The bad news is that this is not where pharmaceutical companies are investing their money. companies' quest for innovation is solely driven by intellectual property rights, they will keep failing in the War on Cancer. This intellectually reductive approach prevents most scientists from looking in the right places to treat cancer."

"The work done by The Beljanski Foundation has enabled several high-profile academic institutions to confirm that some natural molecules are selectively active on many kinds of cancer (including prostate, ovarian, pancreatic), help with precancerous cells (like elevated PSA levels), are effective on cancers that no longer respond to chemotherapy, work in synergy with many chemotherapy drugs -all without side effects-, and finally are effective against some lines of cancer stem cells."

"In this context, I strongly believe that the work done today by The Beljanski Foundation is of utmost importance. First, because of the scarcity of quality research on natural compounds, and, second, because we have the duty to share this life-saving information,” concludes Beljanski.
