Trending Veterinary Patient Monitoring Equipment Market Trend

In August 2020, Merck Animal Health, a US-based company specializing in veterinary products, technologies, and services, acquired IdentiGEN Ltd. for an undisclosed amount. Through this acquisition, Merck offers animal monitoring for food producers, processors, and retailers who are searching for precise and comprehensive animal traceability solutions that offer full accountability as well as increased transparency, food quality, and sustainability for consumers. In combination with Merck's current identification and monitoring technology, which provides real-time, actionable data and insights to aid in, improve, or enhance animal management and health outcomes, the addition of specialized digital technology to our portfolio of medications, vaccines, and services offers comprehensive solutions to help advance animal health. IdentiGEN Ltd. is a land-based company pioneering in DNA-based analysis and diagnostics for animal health monitoring.
