Pyrogen testing is the process of detecting pyrogen in pharmaceutical drugs and devices. When contaminated devices or drugs enter the body, they can cause fever, shock, inflammation, and other issues. Pyrogen testing consists of kits, reagents, and instruments that allow in-vitro detection of pyrogens and endotoxins while reducing the use of animal testing.

The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) issued guidelines for pyrogen and endotoxin testing to industries in June 2012. As a result, stringent government regulations and a growing emphasis on in-vitro testing for pyrogen detection are major factors driving market growth.
