First Annual "Northwest College Day at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West"

Public Relations and Marketing Manager, Ken Straniere, states, "We are thrilled to host the first annual Northwest College Day at the Center of the West. This dedicated day gives the current student population, personnel, and alumni a chance to meet one-on-one with members of our staff."

Our two institutions can be mutually beneficial to one another in sourcing and sharing knowledge and expertise in a variety of fields.”

Curatorial and Live Raptor program staff will be on hand to visit with attendees. The Draper Natural History Museum’s lab will also be open and staffed with volunteers to share what goes on in the lab. Attendees can also learn about employment and summer internship opportunities, including our Exclusive Tours program.

Straniere adds, “Northwest College has a talented pool of emerging professionals, and the Buffalo Bill Center of the West is the largest, most acclaimed museum in the vicinity of Yellowstone. Our two institutions can be mutually beneficial to one another in sourcing and sharing knowledge and expertise in a variety of fields.

“We also look forward to working with Northwest College to develop a work-study program across multiple departments including PR/Marketing, curatorial, conservation, registration, Exclusive Tours, and education.”
