Glacier Flow relieves settlement companies from the time-consuming process of requesting and verifying earnest money deposit information. It also makes categorizing inbound transactions easy by automatically sorting transactions by name and allowing you to customize mandatory documents and fields, such as purchase contracts or real estate agent contact information.

When asked about Glacier Flow EMD White Label product during its beta phase, Tom Sadler, the COO of Distinctive Title, stated, "[Glacier Flow's EMD White Label] looks fantastic. The website co-branding and adding custom fields are awesome and definitely the features my company wants going forward for accepting earnest money."

EMD White Label's launch comes after their successful launch of Wire Instructions Verification, which Title & Escrow companies across the country have been adopting rapidly to prevent wires from being sent to fraudsters.

All together now, Glacier Flow's product suite boasts one of the most extensive title and escrow payments and verification software stacks being offered. These products collect earnest money, send disbursements, and verify/transmit wire instructions between parties in a real estate transaction.

Jonas Tressel, the CEO of Glacier Flow, said, "I'm happy to announce the launch of the EMD white label feature to our customers. We're always listening to our customer's needs and wants, and this feature was at the top of the list. We're positive this feature will help thousands of property buyers across the country securely and conveniently send in their earnest money to their Title or Escrow company."
