"As California moves towards electrification, Riverside County's usage of Forward Thinking Systems (FTS) telematics will provide the much-needed statistical data required to analyze when and where to invest limited infrastructure funds by identifying where vehicles cluster during the work day as well as where they are overnight," says Darrell Stephen, Assistant Director of Fleet Services for Riverside County. "FTS Telematics provide valuable insight into driver behaviors that can impact fuel efficiency and emissions, including average vehicle speed and idle time. Understanding vehicle usage is paramount to new electrification infrastructure planning."
