

Used Hospital Bed Company Offering Hill Rom Progressa Beds for Home Care Patients

Hill Rom hospital beds are some of the most popular beds used in hospitals around the United States. One medical company is offering these to home care patients

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA, USA, January 11, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Hospital beds are beds that are normally full electric beds used in medical centers, hospitals and surgery centers around the United States. These beds, including the Hill Rom Progressa are often very expensive and out of reach for patients that need hospital grade care at home. A San Diego based company "GMG Medical" is not getting former Hill Rom technicians to recertify the Hill Rom Progressa bed and other models to make these available and affordable for outpatient home care.

The company in San Diego has been specializing in hospital beds from Hill Rom and Stryker for the secondary market and home care. The company specializes in all types of full electric bed models from both manufacturers and specializes in ICU, wound care and other types of bed models and mattresses that help with treatment and prevention of bed sores.

"We are finding that hospitals are releasing patients to home that still need a high level of patient care and many times that means a hospital grade bed. Although there are many home care beds offered in the marketplace these are often not enough to provide the level of care these people need", said GMG President and CEO Gloria Flores. "Manufacturers like Hill Rom and Stryker carry many bed models that are effective however they are often priced out of reach for the average person and not an option. We purchase these beds from hospitals, recertify them and offer them in a secondary market so that these patients can receive these beds at an affordable price", she continued.

Hill Rom has been known as a leader in the hospital bed industry. The multi billion dollar company has their hospital bed models in thousands of hospitals around the United States and many times patients request the bed model they used in the hospital as a reference for what they would like to use at home. The Hill Rom Progressa bed is a top of the line ICU bed with an air mattress system. This bed is able to perform many functions including a chair position, lateral turning mattress with low air loss and percussion feature which can address the most demanding patient needs. These beds brand new can run over eighty thousand dollars however recertified with a warranty can be purchased for as little as twelve thousand.

"We find that many of the patents requesting the Hill Rom Progressa bed include quadriplegic, paraplegic and patients with Multiple Sclerosis (MS) and also patients with ALS and limited mobility. These beds provide a wide range of features to help with patient comfort and assisting caregivers", said Flores.

Hill Rom has many bed models that include med-surge (beds with foam mattress) and also ICU which are beds with built in air systems. These beds are sold and delivered in San Diego, Orange County and Los Angeles and shipped all over the United States. Other popular bed models include the Hill Rom P3200 Versacare, Hill Rom 1170 CareAssist and Hill Rom P1900 TotalCare Sport. These bed models all vary in price and each one provides a set of features that many time exceed what home care beds can offer.

As hospitals continue to care for a growing number of patients the need to turn over beds sooner the need for hospital grade durable medical equipment also continues to grow. This continues to send many patients and families into the used refurbished secondary bed market.

As this demand grows GMG Medical continues to serve these clients and provide these hospital grade beds for home use.
