CloudBrew will offer a series of episodes serving up critical conversations on cloud best practices and industry trends.

In the first episode, Top Predictions for Cloud Governance for 2023, CoreStack hosts a digital transformation expert with nearly three decades of experience to discuss how NextGen Cloud

Governance will lead the way to unleashing the power of cloud by enabling continuous and autonomous cloud governance at scale.

Episode 2, Cloud Resource 360: The Magic of a Single System of Record, will dive into a discussion on the importance of having a single system of record for all cloud resources.

The third episode, Tagging 2.0, details the power of a comprehensive tagging strategy and walks listeners through the steps and tools to streamline tagging for robust cloud governance in a multi-cloud environment.

The podcast will provide cloud expertise to practitioners and trailblazers alike and enable them to quickly move to the next level. Episodes will delve into cloud governance practices around FinOps, SecOps, CloudOps, GreenOps and more, and will be relevant to all cloud platforms, including AWS, Azure, GCP, and OCI.

Once the episodes are live, they'll be available on all popular podcast platforms, including iTunes, Spotify, SoundCloud, YouTube, and Google Podcasts.
