“Our new website marks an important milestone in our company's plan for growth and expansion, creating a unified hub to showcase the full range of solutions we offer,” said Tom Meehan, CFI, President at CONTROLTEK. “It was important to us that our financial institution, government agency, retail, aerospace and manufacturing partners had access to information that would help them make informed decisions and solve their challenges.”

“It is our goal to be the trusted source for the best tamper-evident security packaging, retail asset protection and RFID solutions,” said Rod Diplock, CEO at CONTROLTEK. “We are committed to sharing our expertise and knowledge and our website provides a place where we can share information, articles, and resources that truly deliver value to our industry partners and clients.”

“We developed the website with the user experience in mind, ensuring that our clients could easily navigate information, resources and shop our products.” said Brian Gross, COO at CONTROLTEK. “Our clients in the retail and financial sectors who are familiar with shopping for their tamper-evident packaging and cash handling supplies online will have an improved and more convenient way to make their purchases.”

CONTROLTEK invites visitors to explore the new site, which includes a robust blog, new resource centers, and the ability to shop the latest in tamper-evident packaging and operational supplies by visiting www.controltekusa.com.
