“

Rapid testing is available to all, with or without symptoms, so that you can have the peace of mind you need before traveling, returning home, or back to the office after the holidays.”

Suzy Buck, VP of Marketing & Operations, Carolina QuickCare

Carolina QuickCare provides North Carolina residents with greater access to quality care for upper respiratory infections and other winter illnesses.

The symptoms of these respiratory illnesses often overlap, so testing is a vital step in determining the best course of treatment.

Many of our patients have experienced symptoms such as:

Sore throat • Blocked nose • Runny nose • Coughing with no phlegm
Hoarse voice • Muscle pain • Altered sense of smell/taste •

Fever • Sneezing

These issues could be present in the flu, Covid, or RSV. If you or a family member are experiencing any of these symptoms, visit Carolina QuickCare and get tested today.

“Rapid testing is available to all, with or without symptoms, so that you can have the peace of mind you need before traveling, returning home, or back to the office after the holidays,” said Suzy Buck, Vice President of Marketing and Operations at Carolina QuickCare.

*Please note that access to rapid testing depends upon available supply at each center. Due to increased patient volumes, making a reservation online may be helpful, as it will allow you to complete registration before your visit and reduce wait times.

We understand how stressful it can be when you or your child show signs of being ill due to any kind of respiratory virus, which is why we strive to make the experience as stress-free as possible. At Carolina QuickCare, we have extended hours and are open evenings and weekends, so you don't have to wait long periods at the doctor's office or emergency room. Our highly trained specialists provide personalized care for children and adults aged 6 months and older.

Carolina QuickCare offers rapid testing and treatment for children and adults
