Speaking on occasion, a representative for the company said, "We're on a mission to restore smiles to their former glory. Unfortunately, due to unhealthy diets and habits such as smoking, many people are developing problems with their teeth, including turning yellow and bad breath. That is why we deliver high-quality, effective, affordable oral care products to people who need them most. We believe everyone deserves a healthy smile, especially those families struggling to afford dental care. We are proud of helping people be more confident in their schools, colleges, and workplaces. This helps boost their self-esteem and improves their outlook on life. Moreover, good oral health is also linked to people being at low risk of diseases."

He added, "We are constantly researching and developing new products that will make our vision for improving oral health care for all Americans a reality. Our company aims to improve oral health care by creating awareness of the importance of regular dental care with quality products."
