Combined, Tripleseat and WebRezPro provide hotels with a centralized solution that streamlines booking management and room and rate allocations and affords full visibility of group business across the entire operation.

“We're proud to provide Tripleseat and WebRezPro users with the power of two tools that can help them manage their group sales and catering business,” said Jonathan Morse, CEO of Tripleseat. “Hotels need best-in-class software as business and leisure travel ramp up in 2023, and the industry prepares for an uptick in group business.”

The two-way integration allows hoteliers to take advantage of Tripleseat's advanced lead tracking and planning tools by creating group folios and room blocks in Tripleseat, which are automatically duplicated in WebRezPro. When reservations are booked into groups through WebRezPro, pick-up is automatically updated in Tripleseat.

Armed with this combined solution, hoteliers can capitalize on Tripleseat's powerful group sales and management capabilities while benefiting from WebRezPro's robust booking and reporting functions without having to manually duplicate information across the two systems.

"We're thrilled to offer our clients enhanced group booking management through our partnership with Tripleseat," said Frank Verhagen, president at World Web Technologies, the company behind WebRezPro. "It couldn't have happened at a better time as group business begins to ramp up again. Tripleseat is the best at what they do, and we're excited about the increased efficiency and revenue our integration will generate for our mutual clients."
