"Making movies is like creating magic and then capturing it for others to enjoy," said Cameron Currin, award-winning filmmaker and founder of Ember and Smoke Productions. "It only takes a taste of this business to spark a creative person's passion. When that happens, you'll want to become more involved. I have found filmmaking to be personally very rewarding."

All of the information about the new project is now available online on a website that makes it easy for those interested in supporting the effort to get involved. As with most crowdfunding sites, there are various rewards for different levels of participation.

Businesses interested in getting involved in return for promotional considerations should contact Rick Grant in the production office by emailing rick@rga-pr.com.

The project is currently in pre-production. Principal photography will begin in February in Door County, Wisconsin.
