Gail Martino, Ph.D., NA Transformation Lead at Unilever said: "I've been attending the Front End of Innovation conference for many years, and I can confidently say that it's one of the most valuable experiences I have each year.

Martino continued, “The breadth and depth of the topics covered are always impressive, and I always come away with ideas and strategies that I can apply right away. The presenters are top-notch and bring unique perspectives on innovation from different companies. I highly recommend this conference to anyone looking to drive innovation within their organization.”

Throughout its 20-year+ history, FEI: Front End of Innovation has featured an all-star roster of speakers from the global innovation community, including some of the brightest minds of the 21st century, including: Steve Wozniak, Malcolm Gladwell, A.G. Lafley, and others, offering diverse perspectives and an unrivaled event experience.

In addition to its expert keynotes and sessions, networking and knowledge-sharing opportunities, here's what else attendees can expect at FEI: Front End of Innovation:

- Sessions and workshops from leading corporate innovators, including strategists at Campbells, Clorox, Pepisco and others, covering the latest tech trends in the innovation ecosystem.
- Actionable, real-world solutions that can be immediately implemented to help strengthen your business and prove the ROI of your initiatives.
- Unmatched one-on-one networking opportunities to meet with your peers and partners, share obstacles, challenges and triumphs covering innovation in all market conditions.
