DETROIT, MICHIGAN, UNITED STATES, January 25, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Larry Brinker Jr., CEO of Brinker, joined the January 2023 Detroit Policy Conference alongside other community leaders to discuss Detroit's future on the panel "Attracting Residents, Visitors, and Tenants Through Amenities and Policies." The conversation centered around changemakers who have helped Detroit grow and prosper, discussing developing downtown Detroit for the future.

Detroit Policy Conference Panel with Larry Brinker Jr., Christopher Jackson, Kofi Bonner, and Dennis W. Archer Jr.

The panel included Christopher Jackson, Principal at Queen Lilian, Kofi Bonner, Chief Executive Officer of Bedrock LLC, and was moderated by Dennis W. Archer Jr., Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of sixteen42 ventures. Now in its eleventh year, the Detroit Policy Conference brings together over 800 leaders to encourage collaborative efforts to grow business, improve outcomes for the regional community, and shape Detroit's future.

"It was my honor to be able to join with the others on the panel who have done so much for Detroit," said Larry Brinker Jr. "It's increasingly important that Detroit and its surrounding communities remain a focus in growth and development planning and we at Brinker are committed to keeping this community a priority. These conversations and events are important in order to speak about what's been done and discuss plans for the future, to keep positive growth at the forefront of our minds."

While much of the conversation centered around how development in Detroit offers a chance to positively impact those who live there, the group thoroughly discussed the question of how to continue attracting visitors and businesses in a post-pandemic era, particularly hospitality and retail tenants. You can view the entire discussion here.

Brinker is a second-generation entrepreneur who has been building a legacy by expanding his father's construction company, Brinker Group, to include real estate development.

This expansion not only further grows Brinker Group's status as one of Detroit's largest construction companies, but it also provides more opportunities to change lives in the region. A great example of this is the redevelopment of the United Artists Building to 148 new apartments, which will offer families in the city of Detroit affordable housing options.
