Protests in Iran have to this day expanded to at least 282 cities. Over 750 people have been killed and more than 30,000 are arrested by the regime's forces, according to sources of the Iranian opposition People's Mojahedin Organization of Iran \(PMOI/MEK\). The names of 637 killed protesters have been published by the PMOI/MEK.

On Monday evening, brave MEK Resistance Units marched in Tehran and chanted slogans against the regime as protests continue across the country. Locals in Tehran's Jannat Abad district and the city of Bandar Abbas in southern Iran began chanting anti-regime slogans specifically targeting Khamenei and his crackdown apparatus. The slogans included:

“Khamenei is a murderer! His rule is illegitimate!” “Death to the dictator!” “So many years of crimes! Death to the mullahs’ regime!”

On Monday morning, retirees and pensioners of the regime’s telecommunications industry in the provinces of Razavi Khorasan, Kohgiluyeh & Boyer Ahmad, Ardabil, and Gilan began protesting low pensions and poor economic conditions. These rallies were held in the cities of Mashhad, Shahrekord, Ardabil, Yazd, Lorestan, Tehran, Isfahan, Sanandaj, Kermanshah, and Rasht.

A similar rally was held by electricity workers in Tehran outside the regime’s Energy Ministry building as they are protesting low paychecks and other issues regarding their poor working conditions.

Also in the country’s capital retired teachers and workers rallied outside the regime’s Education Ministry protesting their low pensions and other outstanding dilemmas that have gone unanswered by regime officials for far too long.

Reports from Bandar Khomeyni in southwest Iran indicate that contract and official employees of the local petrochemical site are on strike for a second day.

There is word that the CEO of the Persian Gulf Holding Company, a firm associated with the regime’s IRGC, is headed to Bandar Khomeyni from Tehran to see into this matter.

Pensioners and retirees are among the worst-hit segments of Iran’s society. They depend on government stipends to make ends meet, but the regime has refused to increase their pensions in correspondence with the depreciation of the national currency.

and continuing the nationwide protests against the mullahs' regime. Similar protests were reported in another Kurdish city of Divandarreh in Kurdistan Province, western Iran.

In Tehran's various districts and Karaj locals on Sunday night began chanting anti-regime slogans specifically targeting Khamenei and his crackdown apparatus. The slogans included:

"This is the year Seyed Ali (Khamenei) is overthrown!" "Death to the dictator!" "Death to the republic of executions!" "Death to Khamenei!" "Death to the murderous IRGC!" "The IRGC commits crimes and Khamenei supports it!" "We won't have a country as long as the mullahs are in power!"

On Sunday morning, investors of the Cryptoland online exchange held a rally outside the regime's judiciary building in Tehran demanding the IRGC return their stolen money returned.

The users of Cryptoland have been holding protests for two years, but authorities are refraining from acting on their demands. Crypto land had around 289,000 users, who have lost hundreds of millions worth of their savings in the online marketplace.

Retirees and pensioners of the regime's Social Security Organization gathered in Ahvaz, the capital of Khuzestan Province, from four different cities—Shush, Haft Tappeh, Karkheh, and Hor protesting low pensions and poor economic conditions.

Pensioners and retirees are among the worst-hit segments of Iran's society. They depend on government stipends to make ends meet, but the regime has refused to increase their pensions in correspondence with growing inflation and the depreciation of the national currency.

This is the third such rally held recently as family members of various inmates traveled from across the country to hold a gathering on January 24 in the country's capital where children were seen holding placards reading: "Don't execute my dad!"

Iranian opposition coalition NCRI President-elect Maryam Rajavi has once again reiterated the determination of the Iranian people and their organized resistance to continue the struggle against the mullahs' rule and bring about democracy throughout Iran.

The government has long provided many hollow promises of increasing pensions. It was also supposed to settle unpaid pensions remaining from previous years. So far, it has yet to deliver on both demands.

Interestingly, the regime's own media reported that The Social Security Investment Company (SHASTA), the financial institution that is supposed to fund retirees, has seen a significant increase in its profits in the past years. However, these profits have yet to materialize in the lives of pensioners and retirees.

Locals municipality workers in Yasuj of Kohgiluyeh & Boyer Ahmed Province in southwest Iran were also holding a protest rally today seeking answers to their demands that have long gone unanswered.

In Tehran, family members of death row inmates rallied on Sunday outside the regime's judiciary building protesting the death sentences and demanding answers from regime officials.

Iranian opposition coalition NCRI President-elect Maryam Rajavi has once again reiterated the determination of the Iranian people and their organized resistance to continue the struggle against the mullahs' theocratic rule and bring about freedom and democracy throughout Iran.

"Time for western governments to recognize the Iranian people's struggle for regime change," the National Council of Resistance of Iran (NCRI) President-elect said, emphasizing the necessity for the West to blacklist the regime's IRGC as a terrorist organization.

The protests in Iran began following the death of Mahsa Amini. Mahsa (Zhina) Amini, a 22-year-old woman from the city of Saqqez in Kurdistan Province, western Iran, who traveled to Tehran with her family, was arrested on Tuesday, September 13, at the entry of Haqqani Highway by the regime's so-called "Guidance Patrol" and transferred to the "Moral Security" agency.

She was brutally beaten by the morality police and died of her wounds in a Tehran hospital on September 16. The event triggered protests that quickly spread across Iran and rekindled the people's desire to overthrow the regime.
