Road Haulage Market

The road haulage market refers to the transportation of goods using trucking or lorries on roads. It is a segment of the logistics industry that involves the movement of goods from one location to another using vehicles that are specifically designed for the transportation of cargo. The road haulage market is expected to grow in the coming years due to increasing demand for transportation services, as well as the growth of e-commerce and online retail. Factors such as increasing global trade, rising consumer demand for fast and efficient delivery, and the ongoing development of new technologies are also expected to contribute to market growth.
