issues are critical for the global economy and the future of our society.”

“The alliance with the University of New Hampshire Franklin Pierce School of Law represents a unique opportunity to promote and organize educational activities, while raising awareness on intellectual property rights,” Díaz said. “We believe that education lays the groundwork for a brighter future in intellectual property.”

In entering the partnership, both parties have committed to cooperate in the creation of educational opportunities for ASIPI members. UNH Franklin Pierce is a global leader in legal education with a core focus on intellectual property, technology, and information law. ASIPI is a nonprofit with a mission of promoting and protecting the collective interests of its associates through the study and dissemination of intellectual property and the improvement of knowledge and professional practice of its associates.

As part of the agreement, the law school and ASIPI will initiate a series of online and in-person events for members that offer special rates for attendees of either organization. That includes an annual academic course sponsored by both parties. In addition, ASIPI will reserve two speaking slots for its semi-annual seminar and its annual workshop for UNHFP-designated speakers.

The exclusive partnership, which designates UNH Franklin Pierce as the only US-based law school to be advertised and promoted as ASIPI’s academic partner, will continue for five years, with the possibility of extension.
