throughout the winter,” says Alicia Leshner, President of Central Portfolio Control. “Coco's Heart Dog Rescue is a cause near and dear to everyone's heart. Keeping dogs warm, fed, housed, and up for adoption means less animals will be on the streets without a helping hand.”

Coco's Heart Dog Rescue began in 2010 and has since helped thousands of animals find homes through their remote foster program. Primarily a volunteer-driven organization, Coco's Heart welcomes dog rescues from unfortunate situations and houses them in volunteer foster homes while preparing them for adoption placement. With a comprehensive adopt, foster, and help system, Coco's Heart also puts on hundreds of events a year including pet training, photos, and a 5k walk for fundraising.

Central Portfolio Control has always been community focused, giving back to the community where its employees work, play, and live. The team is committed to building a stronger community, and they are active volunteers and donors to the causes and organizations that are meaningful to its team members. The Central Portfolio Control executive team regularly organizes fun events and competitions to engage its employees and raise money for various charitable causes.

Community is everything, and Central Portfolio Control is happy to make this donation to keep even just a handful of dogs warm for the winter months. As the holidays rapidly approach, you can donate to Coco's Heart Dog Rescue or volunteer on their website.
