

“Fight For the White House” Receives Award for Best Political Parody Gaming App of 2022

“Mortal Kombat” Style Game Takes a Novel Approach to Political Contests and Elections

AUSTIN, TEXAS, USA, January 30, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- ORE System is pleased to announce that the company’s “Fight For the White House” free mobile gaming app has received the Stellar Business Award for Best Political Parody Gaming App of 2022.

The free mobile game app takes a novel approach to political contests by allowing gamers to pit candidates against one another in battles reminiscent of the “Mortal Kombat” video game series. The game rises above political stances, allowing voters to release steam and share a good laugh as whimsical caricatures of candidates, from Donald Trump, Joe Biden, Barack Obama, and Mike Pence to Hilary Clinton, among others, new champion in the White House.”

ORE intends to update the award-winning app with new characters, new fight tactics, and new scenarios. In upcoming releases, gamers can expect to “Fight for the White House” of 2024 and even worldwide domination.

The game rises above political stances, allowing voters to release steam and share a good laugh as whimsical caricatures of candidates battle it out in the app. Rather than facing off in stuffy debates, the gamer can fight for control of the White House with hilarious superpowers like Trump’s deadly dollar signs and Pence’s flaming crosses.

“Who can forget the 2020 election?” asks Nick Donarski, CTO and Co-Founder of ORE System. “What some viewed as a joke, I saw as an opportunity. The candidates’ mudslinging and the voter’s vitriol inspired me to create and launch the ‘Fight For’ franchise. No one is happy with that election’s results. Instead of listening to voters grumble for four years, we gave them a chance to put a Gamers can download the original version of "Fight for the White House" free on Google's Play Store and Apple's App Store. ORE is already licensed to take the game to Xbox (NASDAQ: MSFT) and Play Station platforms (NYSE: SONY).
