The album was recorded and produced in Nashville by Dean Miller (son of country music legend Roger Miller), who recalls, "Working with Tommy has been an amazing experience. He brings a work ethic to everything that is incredible. I've had the pleasure of seeing how quickly his sound and skill have developed through our sessions together. He has found his place in music pretty quickly and it's an honor to be a part of this project." American Storyteller consists of eleven tracks of Texas thunder-heart meets mountain-music soul. Tommy wrote or co-wrote all but one song on the album with Kevin Lee, Dave Kennedy, and Kurt Thomas.

Since moving to Nashville, Tommy has had the pleasure of working with many of country music's biggest names. Larry Gatlin, who performed with Tommy at the Gatlinburg Songwriters Festival in 2022 praises Tommy's music, "These songs came right up out of the dirt and dust of rodeo arenas all over the West and Tommy's scratchy, twanging downright infectious voice is a cross between Cash/Kristofferson/Dylan/Willie and Prine.
