U.S. News evaluated more than 15,000 nursing homes on care, safety, infection rates, staffing and health inspections. Only 16 percent of those communities earned the highest rating.

St. Joseph Village of Chicago earned a high-performing rating for its long-term care. In addition to skilled nursing, the community also offers assisted living, senior rehabilitation and respite care.

The Village at Victory Lakes received a high-performing rating for both its short-term rehabilitation and long-term care. The community is located in Lindenhurst, Ill. and also offers independent living, assisted living, memory support and respite care.

“Choosing the right nursing home based on care needs and comfort is a critical decision for prospective residents and their families,” Zach Adams, senior health data engineer at U.S. News, said in a statement. “The Best Nursing Homes ratings highlight nursing homes that excel in short-term rehabilitation and long-term care needs. This year, newly available data on weekend staffing and infection rates that led to hospitalizations provides even more information about how nursing homes rate when it comes to the safety of their residents.”

The Best Nursing Homes methodology factors in data such as resident care, safety and outcomes. To calculate the Best Nursing Homes ratings, U.S. News evaluated each nursing home’s performance using a variety of data obtained from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. Both short- and long-term ratings include data on consistency of registered nurse staffing, use of antipsychotic drugs, and success in preventing emergency room and hospital visits. The long-term care rating also includes measures of whether a nursing home changed ownership and how well they were staffed on weekends. The short-term rehabilitation rating also includes measures of a nursing home’s success in preventing falls and serious infections, and making sure residents are able to return home.
