Beings is an allegorical character perspective on the concept of being a god in relation to human existence.

The plot follows Greek Gods, Athena and Hermes, who begin to question their Godhood, when they encounter

Mina, a woman with an uncanny essence that does not conform to their four thousand years of knowledge. They journey through her existence, as it relates to their desperate need to understand answers to questions, they never believed existed.

There was a time, we walked the earth as the gods we were. Humans built temples and bowed to the air we left behind. Then came the truce and we were replaced by celebrities.”
