

Arizona Pastors and Churches Partner with National Anti-Child Sex Trafficking Organization to Host Night of Hope 5

Community leaders, NFL players, law enforcement, elected officials, and survivors join forces to raise awareness and end human trafficking in Arizona.

TEMPE, AZ, USA, January 31, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Not In Our City, a coalition of pastors and churches in Arizona, announces its partnership with Untrafficked.org for a Night of Hope on February 10th at the Gammage Arena. The event will bring together community leaders, NFL players, law enforcement, elected officials, and survivors to raise awareness and educate people on the issue of human trafficking in Arizona and the nation.

Untrafficked is a national anti-child sex trafficking organization dedicated to educating and empowering Americans to take a stand against this issue. The organization is diverse across political, ethnic, and demographic categories, maximizing its impact in communities, the media, campus, the nation's capital, and the United States.

The Night of Hope will feature speeches from influential leaders, musical performances, and inspiring stories from survivors of human trafficking. The event aims to bring together people from all walks of life to join forces and work towards a common goal of ending human trafficking.

"We are thrilled to be partnering with Untrafficked to bring this important issue to the forefront," said [Name], spokesperson for Not In Our City. "Human trafficking is a growing problem in our communities, and it's time for us to come together and take action. We believe the Night of Hope will be a powerful reminder that we can make a difference together." - Neece Jackson, Night of Hope Executive Director
