Trending Cybersecurity Market Trend

Increasing government investments in cybersecurity solutions is a major trend shaping the growth of the cybersecurity industry. For instance, in September 2022, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), a US federal executive department responsible for public security launched a $1 billion investment to fund its first-ever cyber grant program customized especially for state, local and territorial governments across the country. This will aid governments to address cybersecurity risks such as identifying key vulnerabilities, eliminating threats and bolstering critical infrastructure. Thus, increasing investments by the governments globally are likely to create large avenues for expansion for the players operating in the cybersecurity market over the forthcoming years.
