A key goal of Bailiwick's integration center and warehouse is helping clients manage the asset lifecycle of equipment and supplies required to maintain and support their dispersed technology infrastructure across North America. This is especially important given the still on-going supply chain issues that companies are navigating. The opening of the integration center and warehouse enables Bailiwick to manage the delivery and inventory of new equipment as well as the decommissioning of old equipment for clients.

“Bailiwick’s investment in our new and expanded integration center and warehouse is just another reason our clients continue to partner with us as their IT systems integrator,” said Marko. “Our clients consistently rank Bailiwick at the top of their preferred vendor list. That speaks volume about our employees and the culture that we have developed.”
