Trending Television Network Market Trend

The emergence of the two-way cable television system has provided cable operators with an opportunity to reach a wide customer base. More and more cable operators are offering two-way channel capability that allows customers to communicate/interact with programming facilities or information centers within the system. Using the two-way cable television systems, the subscribers with home computers can link up with the computer network. This system provides subscribers access to data banks and permits them to interact with other online users. They can participate in public-opinion polls or call up various kinds of written and graphic materials. The two-way cable television system is therefore providing several growth opportunities for the players in the cable television network system.
