

Sparkling Bottled Water Market size is forecast to reach $52.96 billion by 2026 - IndustryARC

Sparkling Bottled Water Market growth is being driven by the burgeoning perception and customer's preference towards sparkling bottled water.

HYDERABAD, TELANGANA, INDIA, February 2, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- IndustryARC, in its latest report, predicts that Sparkling Bottled Water Market size is estimated to reach $52.96 billion by 2026, growing at a CAGR of 8.7% during the forecast period 2021-2026. Sparkling bottled water which is also termed as carbonated bottled water is motionless water in which carbon dioxide gas has been dissolved under pressure, packaged in bottles. The increasing apprehension of ailments resulting from consuming polluted tap water and the effortless mobility and convenience offered by sparkling bottled water is driving the growth of the Sparkling Bottled Water Market. Carbonation in sparkling water produces carbonic acid, turning it a little more acidic than regular tap water. Carbonic acid is weak and not very corroding. The issue appears when manufacturers opt for including citric acid or phosphoric acid in their carbonated water for flavoring. The principal dissimilarity between seltzer water and sparkling water lies in where the carbonation comes from. If the carbonation is artificial, it is possibly seltzer water (soda water) or club soda (soda) and managed like a soda. If the bubbles are happening organically, direct from the source, it is sparkling water. The trend for resealable and recyclable packaging material, highly developed transparent bottles or inks, and coatings smeared on the bottles for improved customer experience by way of rare visual effects coupled with expanded shelf appeal is set to propel the growth of the Sparkling Bottled Water Market during the forecast period 2021-2026. This represents the Sparkling Bottled Water Industry Outlook.
