The digital badges market has seen a rise in demand for e-learning, especially during the coronavirus epidemic. The digital badges market will see lucrative growth opportunities due to increased adoption of online learning as well as investment by companies in professional skills development. The digital badges market will grow at a faster rate due to ever-increasing business competition and rising digitization.

The lack of strong IT infrastructures in developing and underdeveloped economies will be a significant obstacle to the market growth for digital badges. Slow adoption rates in these economies will also hinder the growth of digital badges markets. The digital badges market will slow down if there is a lack of universal acceptance across countries and institutions.
