development and leadership training company specializing in remote work, accepted multiple awards last night for its Elevate Virtual Leadership program for the 2022 Brandon Hall Group HCM Excellence Awards.

The program captured the Gold Award for "Best Advance in Managing a Remote Workforce" in the Future of Work category. In addition, the program received the Gold award in the Leadership Development category for "Best Advance in Leadership Development" as well as the Bronze award for "Best Unique or Innovative Leadership Program" in the same category. The Excellence Awards feature two annual programs that recognize the best organizations that have successfully deployed programs, strategies, modalities, processes, systems, and tools that have achieved measurable results. Other winners of the Excellence Awards include Adobe, Wells Fargo, the American Red Cross, and more.

The awards to PRC were based on a case study done on the success of the program with a Global 100 Insurer. Prior to the pandemic, only 20 percent of the company's employees worked remotely. Today, 75 percent are fully remote, 24 percent are hybrid, and only one percent work onsite. The company knew it needed help to support its workforce in remaining connected, productive, and satisfied. But it lacked internal expertise in how to do so. This client engaged Powers Resource Center (PRC) to create and implement a year-long learning program for its team of more than 1,500 Claims leaders and managers.

PRC created a six-module program. To gauge the overall effectiveness of the program, the client measured a comprehensive set of metrics, including Perceived value, Business results, Learning effectiveness, Job impact, Courseware, Support tools, Technology, and Instructor. The overall results were extraordinarily high. This eLearning journey proved to be one of the most well-received and successful leadership programs in the clients' long history.

In the Fall of 2022, PRC learned they were being rewarded two coveted Brandon Hall Group Gold Awards for excellence in the Leadership Development category and one Bronze Award in the Future of Work category for the design and impact of this transformational program.

"We are thrilled to have earned these honors," said Powers upon receiving the awards. "Our intent is always to provide our clients with transformative learning, tools and resources they need to reach the highest levels of engagement and success in the future of work."
