In the white paper, it mentions five specific reasons. The first reason that was mentioned was a staffing agency in Des Moines and surrounding areas provide flexibility. Hiring a staffing agency to find temp workers in construction is a smart choice. Due to the nature of the job, there are a lot of fluctuations –

The reality of construction companies is that your work is project-based. If you have more workers than projects to keep them busy, it's like bleeding money” changes in demand, weather delays, and supply chain issues – all of which can make it tough to predict staffing levels from day to day. The white paper mention specifically that a temp agency for construction workers can provide the flexibility to quickly increase or decrease the number of workers on a project as needed without construction managers trying round people up on their own to fill the gaps.

The second tip that was mentioned was construction companies save money from temp workers. “The reality of construction companies is that your work is project-based. If you have more workers than projects to keep them busy, it's like bleeding money,” Jenny Moraga stated, who is the owner of LaborMax Staffing in Des Moines. “A temp agency for construction workers can save construction companies money in a number of ways.”

Construction workers specialize in specific tasks was the third tip. Any construction project requires individuals with different kinds of skills. A construction staffing agency can provide access to workers with specialized skills when a company needs them without committing to an expensive long-term hire.

The fourth tip that was mentioned was influx of new techniques and ideas. “Your temporary staffing agency gives you access to workers with new skills and ideas you and your team might not otherwise have access to that can streamline task completion and make it easier to hit your project deadlines,” Moraga stated. “That means when you call on your staffing partner for construction workers, you don’t have to wait to add fresh workers to your team.”

Finally, the fifth tip was temporary construction workers boost company morale. Skilled, qualified construction temps with a strong work ethic will be a welcome sight to employees who are stretched thin and expected to pitch in when shorthanded or work excess overtime. When construction companies are overworked, it can harm their morale. It can reduce productivity, lower motivation and lead to mistakes.
