

10 th Annual American Bullion Scholarship Essay Submission Opens

American Bullion is proud to announce the beginning of acceptance of essay submissions for the 10th Annual Essay Scholarship Program!

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, February 7, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Once again, a $1,000 scholarship will be awarded to the full-time, college undergraduate selected, as American Bullion's 2023 Essay Scholarship Award Winner. Over 1000 submissions were received and considered last year. This year's contest applicants are asked to write an essay, no less than five hundred words and no more than one thousand words, answering the question, "Why is it beneficial to own gold and silver during times of inflation and economic turmoil?" Participating students are invited to offer from a wide range of viewpoints, each with its own value and approach. American Bullion is proud to continue the tradition of enticing student writers to research and learn about the great importance and financial reward for savings that include physical precious metals. Our essay scholarship winners are selected by a vote of American Bullion Executives, but the essay, its coverage, and its application to the topic are the exclusive criteria for selection.

Last year, American Bullion celebrated thirteen years in business and is very happy with the success and excitement that the Essay Scholarship Award Program has generated. We have no doubt that our winners and participants are headed for a lifetime of success, with their education, as well as their long-term financial well-being. With all that's happened recently, the world has become an even more difficult terrain to maneuver. Immediate and future finances are a major concern and we are happy to assist those willing to apply themselves and participate because even those who don't win our contest will be better equipped to meet the financial world we're preparing to enter. The 2022 American Bullion Scholarship award winner was Anthony Pascual. Anthony wrote a terrific essay, answering last year's question, "Why do world central banks trust gold?"

Before getting started, it's a good idea for anyone considering participation in this year's contest to review the contest rules and deadlines, as well as submissions by Anthony and other previous Essay Contest winners, on the American Bullion website. Please be advised, this scholarship essay contest is not open to high school or college graduate students. We are looking forward to another competitive and constructive contest this year. For up-to-date information on the scholarship program and other American Bullion announcements, please follow American Bullion on Facebook and Twitter.
