

Analytodon Launches New Analytics Service for Mastodon

A new analytics service called Analytodon has launched, offering valuable insights and data analysis for Mastodon accounts.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, February 7, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A new analytics service called Analytodon has launched, offering valuable insights and data analysis for Mastodon accounts. This platform aims to provide Mastodon users with a comprehensive understanding of their social media presence and engagement.

Mastodon is a decentralized, open-source social network, and Analytodon offers a simple and user-friendly solution for Mastodon users to track their account performance, analyze their audience demographics, and measure the reach of their content. With Analytodon, Mastodon users can get a detailed overview of their followers, posts, and engagement, all in one place.

Analytodon provides customizable reports, making it easy for users to identify trends and patterns in their social media activity. The platform also offers detailed analytics for individual posts, including engagement metrics like likes, boosts, and comments.

"We understand the importance of data and analytics in the world of social media," said Raphael Stäbler, founder of Analytodon. "That's why we've created a platform that makes it easy for Mastodon users to track their performance and make informed decisions about their social media strategy."

Analytodon is available for all Mastodon users, regardless of their account size or reach. The platform is accessible through any web browser and offers a secure and private environment for users to access their data.
