Advertising real estate agent, Pam W. from Seacoast Exclusive Properties, said it perfectly — “I have tried every marketing tool under the sun. From social media to billboards to benches to radio. No other platform has gotten me the same ROI as marketing with Estate Media. Their targeted mailing system gets me in front of the wealthiest homeowners in my area at a price that I have not been able to find better anywhere else.”

She went on to say, “Every successful business owner knows that the secret to a successful referral-based business is maintaining the center of attention. Staying in front of your most lucrative customer contacts makes all the difference, and making a great impression is extremely important for your brand. Advertising in Luxury Home & Lifestyle Country Club Magazine provides comprehensive custom solutions that elevate my luxury brand and capture the attention of the affluent and privileged elite whose lifestyles demand only the finest products and services for their families and in their homes.” Douglas Connors of Castles by the Sea said, “We needed to stand out from the sea of mediocre social media posts, newsletters, e-mails, postcards, and fliers. As a luxury brand, we understand how stiff the competition can be when promoting our brand to new and established customers alike. The ubiquitous nature of social media and other content platforms has created an overload of messaging which has increased the importance that our luxury brand be more creative with our communications to increase customer retention. The high- quality content and beautiful design of Luxury Home & Lifestyle

Country Club Magazine ensures that each issue is not only read and displayed on coffee tables, but also shared with friends. Estate Media's custom solutions increased our lead generation and conversion rates while targeting most desired households."
