The recycled PET (r-PET) bottles market refers to the market for bottles made from recycled polyethylene terephthalate (PET), a type of plastic commonly used for packaging products such as beverages, food, and personal care items.

The market for r-PET bottles has grown in recent years, driven by increasing concern for the environment and the need to reduce waste. Recycling of PET bottles helps to conserve natural resources, reduce energy consumption, and reduce greenhouse gas emissions compared to the production of new bottles from raw materials.
