management services organization, proudly announces that Cardiovascular Institute of Central Florida ("CVICFL") has joined the physician-led, national network. This strategic alliance with Cardiovascular Institute of Central Florida anchors CVAUSA's geographic reach in Florida and adds functional expertise to the Central Florida region with 5 locations, and adds 13 cardiologists under the leadership of Siva Gummadi, MD, FACC.

"In this ever-changing healthcare environment, we are excited to partner with Cardiovascular Associates of America and look to the future in cardiovascular care," said Siva Gummadi, MD, FACC. "We believe that this partnership will allow us to be innovative in providing value-based care with cutting-edge technology and elevate cardiovascular care provided in Central Florida."

Cardiovascular Institute of Central Florida was founded with the mission of offering a diverse and comprehensive range of cardiovascular and sub-specialty services, including non-invasive imaging, heart failure management, electrophysiology, and interventional cardiology care to patients in Ocala and the surrounding region.

"CVAUSA is extremely proud to be partnering with the outstanding physicians and staff at Cardiovascular Institute of Central Florida. CVICFL is the premier, dominant cardiovascular group practice in Ocala. CVICFL and CVAUSA share a common goal of lowering the overall cost of cardiovascular care while maintaining high levels of quality, safety, access, and patient experience," said Tim Attebery, chief executive officer CVAUSA. "We see many opportunities for expanded services and growth in Ocala and Central Florida through our partnership with CVICFL."

Cardiovascular Associates of America has created a business model that enables cardiovascular specialists to retain their physician autonomy and ownership augmented by sharing best practices and executive management support.
