About the Artist:

World renowned Ogunlano Records Founder/CEO/Artistic Director - a multifaceted performing African arts organization and OrisaBeat Music company - Oba Ogunlano is an accomplished drummer/vocalist/fashion designer who has reached heights many other performers can only aspire to.

His many successes include, but are not limited to, television and movie special appearances in

The Originals, Constantine, The Real Housewives of Atlanta, HBO's Bessie Smith, and Nat Turner. He is the Choreography Director for 'The Underground Railroad', streaming on Amazon Prime's Starz

Oba has studied, performed, and toured internationally. The integration of African culture education with musical performances, dance, choreography, storytelling, and costume designs has earned him the reputation of delivering nothing short of the most electrifying performances, residency programs, and African Drum & Dance clinics and workshops.

This impressive innovator also created Ogunlano's Fashions, an online boutique with a clothing line curated by him, based on his African Attire style.

His mission is focused on sharing and preserving African culture and traditions that will inspire future generations of African drum & dance artists. Focusing on arts education and developing integrated learning opportunities for teachers and students, Oba provides professional instruction and artistic support to numerous schools, art organizations, and dancers in the United States, Africa, Europe, and the Caribbean.

His soon-to-be-released project, coming on the heels of His Debut Album 'Destiny Is King's success, is dedicated to bringing music and culture to the world through his artistic genius. 'Destiny is King's release has already expanded Oba's reach from the USA to Africa and the UK; and over 50,000 followers on his Social Media Platforms.
