Dr. Abe Shahim is a practicing board-certified obstetrician-gynecologist in New York City. Dr. Shahim graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Middle Eastern Studies from Columbia University. He earned a medical degree from the University of Tel Aviv; Sackler School of Medicine. Women's Health Questions You Are too Embarrassed to Ask. Dr. Shahim was interviewed on the Top Docs Podcast and Show, a podcast centered around conversations with the top healthcare providers across the US that's available on over 20 different podcast platforms including Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Google Podcasts, Pandora, and I Heart Radio among others.

This episode focuses on Women's Health and the questions many women have, but often do not ask because of the risk of embarrassment and is geared towards women ranging from the age of their first appointment through menopause. Dr. Shahim also discusses procedures such as Thermiva and TempSure Vitalia for women who experience dryness and irritation as well as our peri and postmenopausal patients with mild urinary incontinence and vaginal dryness.

There's a multitude of things that go on when you have a doctor-patient relationship. It's one thing to treat a disease and treat a problem that a patient is having, but each patient is different."

Dr.Shahim

Maggie McKay, hostess of Top Docs says, "There is a lot of information to be shared to women as embarrassing topics don't come up just once in their lifetime, but multiple times. Dr.Shahim highlights not only symptoms, but treatments as well and I'm sure a relief to many women to have some new tools to navigate their next appointment with their gynecologist."
