February 19th marks the first-ever National Hickey Day, a day dedicated to celebrating all forms of love and promoting equality.

DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, February 19, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- February 19th marks the first-ever National Hickey Day, a day dedicated to celebrating all forms of love and promoting equality. This national holiday has been recognized and proclaimed by the National Day Archives, signifying a significant step towards progress for human rights.

The right to love freely and without prejudice is a fundamental human right, recognized and protected by various international organizations and treaties. Unfortunately, despite these recognitions, love still remains threatened in many parts of the world. National Hickey Day aims to promote love and raise awareness of the rights of all humans to love freely.

We want to emphasize the importance of love, acceptance, and equality in our society and encourage everyone to embrace and celebrate their love in whatever form it may take”

Sven Patzer

“We are excited to proclaim February 19th as National Hickey Day, a day that celebrates love and serves as a reminder that love knows no boundaries,” said Sven Patzer, thoughtful founder of national hickey day. “We want to emphasize the importance of love, acceptance, and equality in our society and encourage everyone to embrace and celebrate their love in whatever form it may take.”

National Hickey Day is more than just a celebration of love and affection; it is also a day to recognize the importance of love in all its forms, including self-love and love for family, friends, and community. This day is a reminder that love should be celebrated and cherished, not judged or discriminated against.

While reflecting on the progress made towards promoting love and equality, National Hickey Day is also a day to acknowledge that much work still needs to be done, as discrimination, intolerance, and inequality still persist in many communities.

National Hickey Day is a call to stand together in support of all those who have faced discrimination or prejudice in their lives, and a reminder that everyone has the right to love and be loved, regardless of their gender, sexual orientation, race, or religion.

To celebrate National Hickey Day, individuals and communities are encouraged to share their love and affection with those around them. This day is all about spreading love and positivity, from holding hands and sharing hugs to giving and receiving hickies.

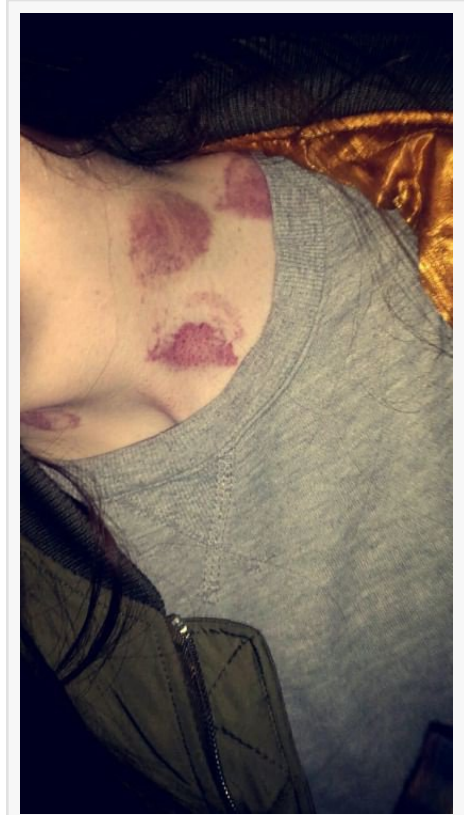

Let us remember that love is a powerful force that can bring about change and create a brighter future for all. As we celebrate National Hickey Day, let us continue to work towards a world where everyone is free to love and be loved without fear of discrimination or prejudice.

Sven Patzer is a trailblazing CEO in the cosmetics and public relations industries.
